

Deutsche Bank Global M365 Rollout & User Adoption

A global transformation of unified communications and collaboration —
16,000 employees, one modern platform.

Between 2020 and 2022, Deutsche Bank embarked on a major global transformation to modernise its unified communications and collaboration ecosystem. The goal: to move away from legacy telephony and conferencing platforms and fully leverage the organisation's Microsoft Office 365 subscription, delivering a seamless, modern user experience for its 16,000 employees worldwide.

Programme Overview

The initiative focused on deploying Microsoft Teams as the central collaboration hub – integrating chat, voice, video, and document sharing into a single, secure environment.

The programme was designed not only as a technical rollout but as a cultural adoption journey, ensuring users embraced new ways of working across Deutsche Bank's global offices.

Key Deliverables

Unified Communications Transition

Retired legacy telephony and conferencing platforms, migrating all users to Teams Voice and Meetings.

User Adoption Strategy

Developed and executed a structured adoption plan, including training, champions network, and multilingual support.

ServiceNow Integration

Embedded Teams and M365 workflows into ServiceNow, enabling streamlined IT support and request management.

Key Deliverables (continued)

Performance & Reliability

Delivered measurable gains in uptime, call quality, and collaboration speed.

Cost Optimisation

Achieved significant cost reductions through platform consolidation and licence rationalisation.

Change Enablement

Partnered with business units to ensure smooth transition and sustained engagement post-go-live.
